Tobacco: Workshop Staged On BYU Campus

Old Man Nicotine, his effects and defects, are up to the scrutiny this week during Brigham Young University's annual Tobacco Education Workshop.

HELD IN THE Stephen L. Richards building on campus, the workshop is designed for teachers and students interested in preventive measures taken against smoking. It is planned to point out the effect smoking has on young people.

Dr. Ray L. Watters, director of the workshop, said personnel from throughout the state are attending the program as well as students from surrounding communities.

HE CITED three areas which must be "cleaned up" immediately if today's young people are to be cured of the habit. These areas are: adult apathy, tobacco advertisement and the laxness of laws dealing with smoking and young people.

A SCANDINAVIAN survey taken nearly five years ago mentioned by Dr. Beveridge. In that poll, he said, it was found that the world was "on the threshold of a great disaster" if smoking was not curbed shortly in a majority of the world's young people.

He presented a tri-city survey, taken in three major population centers across the nation, which said more than one million teenagers now smoking would die before they reached 70 years of age.

4000 SQUARE FEET. . .

Knight Building Addition, Sciences Complex Set

The new Life Sciences Building and a 45,000-square foot addition to the Jesse Knight Building have been announced at Brigham Young University.

RESIDENT ERNEST L. WILKINSON disclosed the expansion plans last week and said occupancy in the Knight Building is planned in about 18 months. Engineers and architects have been chosen for the new building—still in the planning stages.

Present plans call for the addition to the Knight Building to be on the north-west side of the present complex. BYU Physical Plant director Sam Brewster said construction of the addition would be pushed "as fast as possible."

THE ADDITION will be along the main building, Brewster said. It will have three levels with an underground passageway connecting it with other section of the building. Twenty five 1600-seat lecture halls are planned as well as two, 250-seat auditoriums.

Seventy-three faculty offices are planned.

SPACE FOR Botany, Zoology, Entomology, Bacteriology, Agricultural, Agronomy, Animal Science and Horticulture will be provided in the new sciences building.

Brigham Young University Tobacco Education Workshop is underway on campus. Artists representation above points out fact program is trying to point out—harmful effects of smoking. It will end Friday.

Anti-Obscenity Failed

It's like asking the man if he still beats his wife.

THERE'S A SOLUTION; but it's somewhere in between the obvious answers.

This is the present situation regarding Provo's new youth protection ordinances. Granted, an ordinance of some sort is needed. But on what grounds and how could it be enforced?

PROVO CITY COMMISSIONERS approved an ordinance in February that met the needs of the citizens of this area. Last week the Commissioners rescinded this ordinance and in its place put two less stringent laws that have been classed as utterly useless.

The old ordinance required a licensing provision for movie exhibitors and magazine sellers. This was the primary method of enforcement. The day the law went into effect, a Salt Lake City magazine distributing firm took it to court and filed an injunction against it. The firm said it was unconstitutional.

ATTORNEYS AND CIVIC LEADERS were consulted by the Provo City Fathers after the injunction. Two district ordinances—were for movies and one for magazines—were decided upon and subsequently passed after a stormy public hearing.

The point is—these two ordinances have left out the licensing provision—the one thing that could have made the old law enforceable.

ELDIN RICKS, chairman of the Utah County Council for Better Movies and Literature, denounced both new ordinances and said the magazine portion was like having no law at all. He declared the movie section only partially effective.

We are inclined to agree with Mr. Ricks. An ordinance is sorely needed in this area and the two new laws put before the public are not the solution.

PERHAPS ONE LAW that would require outside agencies to class movies and magazines as suitable or unsuitable for youth is the answer. As it stands now, the exhibitors themselves are asked (not required) to classify their material.

As we said, the solution is somewhere in between.

—DAVE FITZPATRICK

You may not consider yourself a "Breakfast of Champions," but that mosquito that's humming about your head is probably sizing you up for her next material-sucker bait.

You: Sucker Bait For Distaff Skeets

Do mosquitos find you tasty?

DO THEY HUM around you persistently while seeming to ignore others in the immediate vicinity?

You may be "mosquito-prone" and simply irresistible to the little buzzers, according to a recently completed coast-to-coast survey.

TO FIND OUT whether mosquitos actually do play favorites—and if so, why,—the manufacturers of insect repellent conducted intensive tests on 799 people in 16 cities ranging from Albany, N.Y., to Portland, Ore., and from Boston, Mass., to Fort Worth, Tex. They found that complexion, health, temperament, even the type of clothing worn—determined who was first in the heart of culex pipiens, the common house mosquito found in all 56 states.

What sort of person strikes a mosquito as particularly delicious?

HE OR SHE is dark-complexioned and favors dark-colored clothing, even in the summertime.

The ideal mosquito target is tremendously energetic, constantly "on the go"—and in excellent health.

HE OR SHE BATHES once daily, or more rarely . . . slathers on cologne, after-shave lotion or some other preparation which imparts "a noticeable fragrance."

The person who is "sucker bait" has a warm skin and moist palms.

ARE MEN OR WOMEN more attractive to mosquito? The survey doesn't say—but it is a fact that only female mosquitos bite or hum. Their "song" is a mating call to attract the harmless male—who lives exclusively on plant juice.

Veep Challenges American Students

(Editor's Note: The following excerpts are the major portion of the text delivered by Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey at the Michigan State University in East Lansing Sunday.)

MORE AMERICANS are in college this year than all the Americans alive when our nation was founded. More Americans are in graduate schools today than all the Americans who bore arms during the Revolution. Those are lots of resources.

And we will need them all.

You will be in charge. You will be responsible for our national security and my Medicare.

YOU WILL BE RESPONSIBLE for the education of my grandchildren and the freedom of my great-grandchildren. So I propose to take a look at you and have a talk with you.

But first, about your parents . . .

THEIRS IS THE FIRST GENERATION in all of history which, by its own hand, has surrendered the privilege of telling its offspring: This is how things are; this is how they always have been; this is the way the world goes.

Your fathers and mothers were born children of hills and valleys. Today they see the galaxy itself.

THEY HAVE CREATED amazing new systems of management, science and technology.

But I can tell you, it has been no picnic. It has been no improvised "happies."

IT HAS TAKEN INVOLVEMENT, and hard work, and study, and self-doubt, and passionate disagreement, and finally, understanding and motion.

Progress has ridden no fast express. It has been a local all the way.

Thus, as older generations welcome you aboard, I think you ought to know that they've not been cooling their heels waiting for you.

THE GENERATION of your parents has lived amid the floodwaters of history. Most of them have known genuine hardship. Many of them have lost loved ones on other continents. Their old horizons have gone far off in space, yet they have followed, cautious but willing. The world has come to their dinner table, and at times has seemed to stay a long while, yet they remain hospitable.

They have had to meet trouble in large sizes.

THEY HAVE HAD to feed and clothe and house and transport and produce and educate and struggle in big portions, just to overcome the clear and present perils of their time.

Individualism has been the backbone and concern of their work. Yet to serve the individual, they have had to build on a scale which has seemed at times to dwarf the individual.

YOUR PARENTS had to fight desperately, at your age, to stave off poverty at home and violence abroad—and they in large part succeeded.

Yet the challenges you face are far greater, and far more exciting, than those they faced. The scale of effort to be required of you will be far greater than that required of them.

FOR THE FACT of our time is this: The poverty our nation knew in the Great Depression . . . the peril that mankind knew in World War II—these are nothing compared to the poverty and peril that surround our strong, rich America in the world today.

There are desperate conditions of injustice and hunger and disease throughout most of the human family.

THERE ARE, in human society, conditions which not only bring a sense of shame and insufficiency to those of us who live in such a blessed land . . . but conditions which can lead to the eruption of the little disorder, which can grow to the small war, which can build to the cataclysm which could destroy rich and poor; black and white, believer and non-believer—all of us alike.

This is the environment in which you will be in charge.

I believe you sense the full measure of what you face.

YOU PERFORM remarkably well in the system your parents built, yet I know that you are probing relentlessly to find your own personal relationship to it . . . desperately seeking identity in a society of higness.

You set high standards for yourselves, and you judge yourselves harshly.

And you show a remarkable degree of serious introspection for children of prosperity.

AND I SOMETIMES FEAR that, in your introspection, you may come to believe you are alone.

I tell you now that when you stand alone, you are not alone.

WHEN YOU SPEAK OUT and act alone in America, you are more a part of this land and more a source of its strength than are all of the multitudes who join in silence, no matter how vast they may seem.

Oppose the compact majority, and you are sure to collect a few bruises. But I have found that the best remedy for a bruise is to collect a few more.

The more you speak out, and the more you act, the more you are going to discover that you are lending courage to a surprising number of people whose feelings will come to the surface in response to yours.

TRUE FREEDOM in any land is a relentless, never ending process of self-discovery among its people. This you will preserve, for our own land, not because it is your inheritance, nor because some destiny says you must; but because your own free search for individual identity in the living present, demands it.

The strongest bulwark of liberty is man, free and in search of himself.

IT IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY to carry that lesson into forgotten corners of our country—and of the world—where people have never had any reason to learn it, or believe it.

We face today the incomparable opportunity—in the red dust of South American villages, in the neon meadow that is Watts, California—to stimulate the will to seek identity and to discover one's course.

YOU WILL BE TEMPTED to chart your progress by Gross National Product or by trade indices, or by many other of the quantitative measures you so distrust today. Keep your distrust of these things.

MEASURE YOUR PROGRESS by whether those you help—those who have known in their lives nothing but despair and defeat—by whether they can begin to have faith, by whether they can begin to have hope, by whether they can begin to find themselves.

I hope you will be sensitive to that opportunity.

I WILL TELL YOU THIS: If you do not choose to follow, precisely the trails that others have blazed, then I do not think we ought to count the future unsafe in your hands.

To your search for identity and self-knowledge, you will have much to discover before you determine what is worthwhile, and what is worthless.

BUT IN A LAND of individuals, better the mystery of the search than some counterfeited security. In a world society desperate for change, better your dedication to it than your fear of it.

It is the special blessing of this land, that each generation of Americans has called its own cadences, and written its own music—and our greatest songs are still unsung."

What Makes Him Do It?

Why does education major Larry Olsen do it—what makes him leave civilization behind as he goes into the wilds?

"SURVIVAL," he says, "is not a pleasurable experience at best. You actually go from the space age back to the stone age—eating to live instead of living to eat."

Nevertheless, he feels that survival techniques are important for all people—"You can be stuck almost anywhere with almost nothing—and if you know the technique you'll survive."

The trips then become a test of knowledge acquired. Olsen will teach BYU students in survival beginning Wednesday in courses provided by Special Courses and Conferences.

the technique they used. In this six-picture sequence he demonstrates the construction and use of a fishing spear that hasn't changed a bit since pre-history.

He Leaves Civilization

When Larry Olsen roughs it he literally leaves civilization behind and living off the land as primitive man.

OLSEN, a BYU student when he not living off the land, took to the desert for a week wearing only a light shirt and levis for spring finals. He and a young friend, Paul Neuman of Sugar Creek, Iowa, took no implements—no camera, and pencil and paper for notes—and no food.
Returning from the desert none worse for wear, the two then headed into the Uintas, following the Little Diamond Fork Creek.
The pair found 14 or 15 edible plants.

"I TOOK shoes this time," Olsen, "but we only used them on our longest hikes."

He followed this week with a trip into Idaho with five junior high school and high school boys for the Twin Falls.

OLSEN TAUGHT the group to make their own spears, axes, arrows and other implements from stone and wood. They fish-and hunted with their own tools.
One day we dug kamas from the prairie (kamas is an edible substance) with a stick just as Indians did 1000 years ago."

Montanan Assumes President's Position

Brigham Young University's Summer School Studentbody president is Don McCracken, a 27-year-old graduate student from Great Falls, Mont.

A RELATIVELY short man in physical stature, Mr. McCracken is long on ideas and ambition. As the position of summer school president is strictly apolitical, Mr. McCracken is further assigned to task of "proving his mettle" to the general studentbody as he was not elected.

Most people associated with student government this summer think that's the least of his worries.

HE IS a personable, easy-going man whose code seems to be constant optimism rather than chronic pessimism. He has worked in various areas of student government and is giving some thought to adding in this fall's studentbody government make-up.

"A balanced approach is what we're trying to achieve this summer," he says. "That is something for everyone at school—marrieds, individual students and the children that accompany their parents."

Two executive assistants on his staff are Ron Hart, former studentbody president of Rick's College and John Lund.

Student Government No Easy Task

Assuming control of a government of a city of 6,000 is no easy task.

This is the situation with the present Brigham Young University studentbody officials. They are hard-working, intelligent individuals who will, no doubt, bring considerable distinction to this summer's activities.

The accent, this summer, appears to be on youth—no matter how hackneyed that phrase seems. Chosen for finance vice-president was a 19-year-old sophomore from Soda Springs, Ida. And a girl yet.

Another female appointed was a 20-year-old social vice-president from California who has perhaps the biggest individual load to carry.

A sophomore is the new Cultural Vice-President.

The assuming of important positions by these men and women means far more than names on a door. It is a responsibility, a challenge and an opportunity that will have to be met.

In a pensive moment, as the group huddled around the fireplace in the evening, Summer Studentbody President Don McCracken reflected upon the responsibilities that were his.

"SUMMERSIDES" . . .

Culture Veep Ambitious

Grange, a sophomore president from Pocatello, Ida., is charged the unenviable task of co-ordinating the myriad of assemblies and other events that take place during the summer school.

PLANS on unique innovations for summer school participants which will no doubt include the traditional BYU winter firesides. Mr. Grange says these events will be held three times a month, if possible, and incorporate all the features of the traditional fireside.

He calls them "an experience most students won't want to pass up."

STUDENT TALENT co-ordination is also a large part of the Culture President's life. As a result of scheduling the many assemblies Mr. Grange says it will be his job to provide as much student talent as is required for the task.

He is a returned missionary from the Eastern Atlantic States Mission.

3 Girls On Council

For the first time in longer than anyone cares to remember, three women are on the Executive Council of the Associated Students of Brigham Young University.

They are Kathy Brian, Vice-President of Social; Joan Butterworth, Executive Secretary; and Eileen Smith, Finance Vice-President.

Miss Butterworth's position is usually left to the females. The other two, however, are customarily reserved for bubbly, dark-haired, handsome men and short, intellectuals with horn-rimmed glasses—in that order.

Joan Butterworth is a senior, majoring in Business Education from Seattle, Wash. Planning on an August graduation, she wants to teach secondary school in the fall.

Miss Smith, a 18-year-old Business major from Soda Springs, Ida., is perhaps the youngest and prettiest person ever to occupy the Finance chair. She says the studentbody government has been allotted about $7,300 for the summer.

Of this, the majority of the fund are earmarked for the social vice-president's office, she says. The ASBYU President receives the next largest allotment.

Miss Smith considers the post a "challenge and a great responsibility." In some areas, she says, the Finance officer does quite a bit of behind-the-scenes work in planning the every day function of student government.

A 20-year-old German major from Hayward, Calif., is BYU's Social Veep for the summer. She is Kathy Brian, who possesses the busiest job on campus.

A great part of campus life during summer school is devoted to social activities, she says. And Miss Brian has a master plan for them all.

ESP Special Will Air On TV Network

"One of the great mysteries of the ages has been the ability of some people to perceive things without actually seeing them, to somehow know, through extraordinary mental process, that something distant—either in space or time—has taken place or will take place," says Stephen Fleischman, producer of documentaries for ABC News.

MR. FLEISCHMAN's latest offering, "The Baffling World of ESP," which will be aired over the ABC Television Network on Thursday, June 16, from 10 to 11 p.m., EDT, concerns itself with this extraordinary power, the people who evidence it and those who study it.

A year in the making, "The Baffling World of ESP" represented a major challenge to Mr. Fleischman. While he considers every show a gamble, the noted producer said: "When you're dealing with ethereal material, material that you can't feel, see or depend upon, material such as extrasensory perception, then your whole production is a gamble."

A WINNER of 13 awards for news documentaries, Mr. Fleischman considers "The Baffling World of ESP" one of his most effective and enlightening specials.

"The documentary is not a sensationalized show. It is an honest and serious examination of a subject of tremendous appeal, which in the past has most certainly been misrepresented," Mr. Fleischman said.

"ACCORDING to the producer," "The Baffling World of ESP" is approached scientifically. Unlike most documentaries, which are based on controversy, "The Baffling World of ESP" is a straightforward report on what scientists are doing to confirm the existence of extrasensory perception. Taking this approach, we believe we have an exciting show because it is real, because both the successes and failures are presented.

"We have captured on film some exciting scenes of actual 'psychic' phenomena, both inside and outside the laboratory. Among those who participate are leading scientists like Gardner Murphy of the Menninger Foundation, Dr. Henry Margenau of Yale University and Professor Hans Bender of Freiburg University in Germany."

Openings Available

The Student Government Offices have openings for students interested in working in one of the various branches. These positions allow students to do service to their student government as well as gain valuable experience for themselves. Frequently, there are also certain social benefits.

THE FOLLOWING offices have announced openings and times for interviews:

Positions Offered

Writers, photographers and receptionists—the raw material of a newspaper—will be needed to turn out a quality paper for the Brigham Young University community. It was announced by the Universe staff.

"WE ARE currently attempting to make our paper professional in both quality and appearance," said Editor Stan Hodge, "but we need top notch people to do it."

The Editor encouraged students with writing experience or experienced photographers to apply for the positions open in 538 Wilkinson Center immediately.

"AN ADDITIONAL incentive," commented Hodge, "is the remuneration program we are planning on using which would provide a reward for the best stories and photos."

Additionally Hodge emphasized that anyone desiring articles to appear in the Universe needs simply to contact the staff, "but as early as possible."

SEE FREE DEMONSTRATION

AT PROVO HIGH SCHOOL

THURSDAY (June 16)

Little Theater: 4:00 p.m., 7:30 p.m.

FRIDAY June (17)

Little Theater: 4:00 p.m., 7:30 p.m.

(Note: Demonstration lasts 1 hour, 15 minutes.)

- You will see a Reading Dynamics graduate read at amazing speeds from a book he has never seen before and then tell in detail what he has read.
- You will see a documented film that includes actual interviews with Washington Congressmen who have taken the course.
- You will learn how we can help you to faster reading, improved comprehension, greater recall.

HOW IS THIS POSSIBLE?

Eighteen years ago Evelyn Wood, a Utah schoolteacher, made a startling discovery that led to the founding of Reading Dynamics. While working toward a master's degree, she handed a term paper to a professor and watched him read the 80 pages at 6,000 words per minute—with outstanding recall and comprehension. Determined to find the secret behind such rapid reading, she spent the next two years tracking down 50 people who could read faster than 1,500 words per minute. She studied their techniques, taught herself to read at these faster rates. Now, after years of experience in public schools and universities, she has made it possible for you to benefit from this great discovery.

IS IT SIMPLY A PROMOTION STUNT?

Over the past eleven years more than 200,000 graduates have been convinced that Reading Dynamics is a proven method. About Reading Dynamics' impact on our nation's legislators, Time Magazine said "Washington has seen nothing like it since the days when Teddy Roosevelt read three books a day and ran the country at the same time."

SENATOR PROXMIRE

Wisconsin

"I must say that this is one of the most useful education experiences I have ever had. It carefully compares favorably with the experience I've had at Yale and Harvard."

SENATOR TALMADGE

Georgia

"It is my opinion that if these techniques were instituted in the public and private schools of our country, it would be the greatest single step which we could take in educational progress."

Conventional rapid reading courses aspire to 450-600 words per minute. Most Reading Dynamics graduates can read between 1,500 and 3,000 words per minute, and many go even higher.

MONEY BACK GUARANTEE

We guarantee to increase the reading efficiency of each student AT LEAST 3 times with good comprehension. We will refund the entire tuition to any student who, after completing minimum class and study requirements, does not at least triple his reading efficiency as measured by our beginning and ending tests.

Dr. Holbrook Is Invited To Washington

Dr. Leona Holbrook, chairman of the department of Physical Education for Women at Brigham Young University, has accepted the invitation of Mrs. Eunice Kennedy Shriver to work on the advisory board of the Joseph P. Kennedy, Jr. Foundation.

DR. HOLBROOK was selected to the board as a result of her previous professional work in the area of physical education and her prior suggestions to the Kennedy Foundation. The appointment is for two years.

THE FOUNDATION is currently conducting a campaign for better physical and medical training of mentally retarded persons of any age group. The organization does, however, devote much of its attention to the school-age patients, since "they are in the best position to benefit from the training," according to Dr. Holbrook.

Welcome Dance To Be Presented Friday Night

The Welcome Back Dance will swing into action Friday night, June 17.

O'NEIL MINER'S BAND will provide the music for the dance in the Wilkinson Center Ballroom. Admission will be 25 cents.

Debate Syllabus Set By ASBYU Academics

A syllabus on debate for high school students is being compiled and published under the direction of the Academics Office of the Associated Students of BYU.

COMPOSED of about 450 pages of up-to-date information specially designed and oriented for the high school debate, the syllabus is intended to have a nationwide circulation. Last year a less extensive project proved the worth of this year's more detailed work.

Jed Richardson, debate coach, is directing the research and organization of the syllabus which it is hoped will replace the presently inadequate handbooks that are outdated and shallow.

INTERESTED PERSONS are urged to apply at the Academics Office, 434 Wilkinson Center. Under Jed Richardson and a committee of six they will help research and compile the syllabus for publication by August 10, 1968.

Offices and research facilities will be set up in the Harris Fine Arts Center and the Herald R. Clark Library. The Academics Office will serve as an information center.

Speed Reading

Included in this Summer School offering are special non-credit classes in Speed Reading and Comprehension which are to be held each session.

FIRST SESSION classes will run Mondays through Thursdays at 2:40 to 4:30. Second session class will run Mondays through Thursdays at 8:00 and Mondays and Wednesdays from 10:00 to 12:00.

Students interested in enrolling in these classes should contact Herlin, director, C-235 Student Administration Building.
